

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF NEVADA

John Phipps, as Guardian ad litem for M.P., a minor child; and Dina Phipps,

Case No.: 2:13-cv-0002-GMN-PAL

Plaintiffs,

ORDER

Clark County School District; Lachelle James; J. Schell; D. Couthen; and M. Caldwell, Defendants.)

This § 1983 action is brought on behalf of M.P., a minor child, by M.P.’s parents, John and Dina Phipps (collectively, “Plaintiffs”). Pending before the Court is Plaintiffs’ Motion for Summary Judgment. (ECF No. 124). Defendants Sergeant Darnell Couthen, Detective Matthew Caldwell, and Detective Jeffrey Schell (collectively, “the Officer Defendants”) as well as Defendant Clark County School District (“CCSD”), filed a response in opposition, (ECF No. 131), and Plaintiffs replied, (ECF No. 135).

Also before the Court is Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment. (ECF No. 125). Plaintiffs filed a response in opposition, (ECF No. 130), and Defendants replied, (ECF No. 136). For the reasons set forth herein, the Court will grant each of the Motions in part and deny them in part.

I. BACKGROUND

This case centers upon allegations that Defendants violated M.P.'s constitutional rights by facilitating several acts of physical abuse against him. (Am. Compl., ECF No. 36).

At the times relevant to this action, M.P. was a student at Variety School, an institution operated by CCSD which specializes in educating children with learning disabilities. (Defs.’

1 Mot. p. 2 n.1, ECF No. 125). M.P. suffers from autism, and as a result of this condition he can 2 neither speak nor write. (Am. Compl. ¶ 14). During the 2011-2012 academic year, M.P. was 3 assigned to Classroom 25 at Variety School, which included approximately six other non-4 verbal students. (Harris Depo. 6:8-10, ECF No. 124-1); (Coleman Depo. 23:2-3, ECF. No. 124-5 3).

6 On January 18, 2012, the parents of D.M., another student assigned to Classroom 25, 7 contacted the CCSD Police Department (“CCSD PD”), claiming that D.M. had arrived home 8 from school with bruises on multiple occasions. (Chin Depo. 4:21-24, ECF No. 124-5). During 9 his investigation of this claim, Officer Christopher Chin of the CCSD PD could not locate any 10 records kept by the Variety School staff which offered insight into how D.M. may have 11 received bruises while at school. (Id. 6:18-7:9).

12 On Friday, March 2, 2012, Chief James Ketsaa of the CCSD PD was informed by the 13 CCSD Superintendent’s Office that an advocate for one of the students of Classroom 25 had 14 expressed concerns about recurring student injuries. (Ketsaa Depo. 17:1-15, ECF No. 124-10).
15 That evening, the Officer Defendants installed hidden surveillance cameras in Classroom 25.
16 (Couthen Depo. 17:13-19:3, ECF No. 124-12). The cameras were equipped both to transmit a 17 live feed to a viewing location several miles away and also to record video for future review.
18 (Id. at 19:7-10).

19 Though the Officer Defendants planned to have Detective Caldwell watch the live feed 20 from the cameras on Monday, March 5, 2012, Detective Caldwell was ill on that day and did 21 not attend work. (Couthen Depo. 11:25-12:2, Ex. W to Defs.’ Mot.). As a result, none of the 22 officers viewed the feed from the cameras until Tuesday, March 6, 2012. (Caldwell Depo. 7:4-23 15, ECF No. 124-14).

24 While viewing the live feed that morning, Detective Caldwell witnessed an incident in 25 which Defendant Lachelle James, a classroom aide, repeatedly “dragg[ed]” M.P. to the ground

1 and “pin[ned]” him to the floor with her knees and elbows. (Decl. of Arrest p. 1, ECF 124-2).
2 During this incident, Detective Caldwell noted that M.P. “did not appear to be resisting or 3 combative,” but did look as if he was crying. (Id. pp. 1-2). At one point, M.P. “crawl[ed] under 4 a table” only to be dragged back to the center of the room by his wrist by Defendant James. (Id.
5 p. 1).

6 A few minutes later, Detective Caldwell witnessed Defendant James, without any 7 apparent provocation, repeatedly shove a different student who was also not resisting or being 8 combative. (Id. p. 2). During this incident, Defendant James pushed the other student directly 9 into M.P. (Id.).

10 After viewing this incident via the live feed, Detective Caldwell contacted Sergeant 11 Couthen and Detective Schell, who then viewed the recording of the incident. (Schell Depo.
12 12:17-24). After conferring about the appropriate course of action, the detectives drove to 13 Variety School and discussed the established procedures for physically restraining students 14 with the school’s assistant principal and special education facilitator. (Decl. of Arrest p. 2).
15 Upon concluding that Defendant James’ actions were not in accordance with the school’s 16 official restraint procedures, the detectives placed Defendant James under arrest. (Id.).

17 After the arrest, the detectives reviewed all of the footage recorded by the surveillance 18 cameras on March 5 and 6, 2012. Plaintiffs allege that, in addition to the incident witnessed 19 live by Detective Caldwell, the footage shows that Defendant James committed three additional 20 batteries upon M.P. (Pls.’ Mot. ¶¶ 32-34, 44-45). One of these alleged batteries took place 21 approximately two hours after Detective Caldwell initially viewed the incident over the live 22 feed. (Id. at ¶¶ 44-45). Defendant James subsequently pled guilty to two gross misdemeanor 23 counts of child abuse, neglect, or endangerment. (Defs.’ Mot 2:7-9).

24 The parties agree that the nature of the students’ disabilities in Classroom 25 often 25 caused them to exhibit behaviors which required the use of restraint techniques. (Pls.’ Mot. ¶

1 57); (Defs.' Mot. ¶ 16). Similarly, the parties do not dispute that before the incident in 2 question, Defendant James underwent Crisis Prevention Intervention Training ("CPI 3 Training"), which addressed how and when to physically restrain students in order to prevent 4 them from harming themselves or others. (Pls.' Mot. ¶ 58); (Defs.' Mot. ¶ 20). It is also 5 undisputed that some of the staff members assigned to Classroom 25 on March 6, 2012, had not 6 undergone CPI Training, (Defs.' Mot. ¶ 6), and that none of the staff members in Classroom 25 7 on March 5, 2012, reported Defendant James for child abuse, (Pl.'s Mot. ¶ 62).

8 Based upon these facts and allegations, the Amended Complaint sets forth: (1) a claim 9 for violations of 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against CCSD and the Officer Defendants; (2) a claim of 10 battery against CCSD and Defendant James; (3) a request for punitive damages; and (4) a 11 request for enhanced damages pursuant Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.1395. (Am. Compl. ¶¶ 45-75).

12 In the instant Motions, Plaintiffs, CCSD, and the Officer Defendants each request that 13 summary judgment be issued in their favor as to all of the claims at issue.

14 II. LEGAL STANDARD

15 The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide for summary adjudication when the 16 pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the 17 affidavits, if any, show that "there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant 18 is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). Material facts are those that 19 may affect the outcome of the case. See Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248
20 (1986). A dispute as to a material fact is genuine if there is sufficient evidence for a reasonable 21 jury to return a verdict for the nonmoving party. See id. "Summary judgment is inappropriate if 22 reasonable jurors, drawing all inferences in favor of the nonmoving party, could return a verdict 23 in the nonmoving party's favor." Diaz v. Eagle Produce Ltd. P'ship, 521 F.3d 1201, 1207 (9th 24 Cir. 2008) (citing United States v. Shumway, 199 F.3d 1093, 1103-04 (9th Cir. 1999)). A 25 principal purpose of summary judgment is "to isolate and dispose of factually unsupported

1 claims.” Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323-24 (1986).

2 In determining summary judgment, a court applies a burden-shifting analysis. “When 3 the party moving for summary judgment would bear the burden of proof at trial, it must come 4 forward with evidence which would entitle it to a directed verdict if the evidence went 5 uncontested at trial. In such a case, the moving party has the initial burden of establishing 6 the absence of a genuine issue of fact on each issue material to its case.” C.A.R. Transp.
7 Brokerage Co. v. Darden Rests., Inc., 213 F.3d 474, 480 (9th Cir. 2000) (citations omitted). In 8 contrast, when the nonmoving party bears the burden of proving the claim or defense, the 9 moving party can meet its burden in two ways: (1) by presenting evidence to negate an 10 essential element of the nonmoving party’s case; or (2) by demonstrating that the nonmoving 11 party failed to make a showing sufficient to establish an element essential to that party’s case 12 on which that party will bear the burden of proof at trial. See Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 323-13 24. If the moving party fails to meet its initial burden, summary judgment must be denied and 14 the court need not consider the nonmoving party’s evidence. See Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 15 398 U.S. 144, 159-60 (1970).

16 If the moving party satisfies its initial burden, the burden then shifts to the opposing 17 party to establish that a genuine issue of material fact exists. See Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v.
18 Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586 (1986). To establish the existence of a factual dispute, 19 the opposing party need not establish a material issue of fact conclusively in its favor. It is 20 sufficient that “the claimed factual dispute be shown to require a jury or judge to resolve the 21 parties’ differing versions of the truth at trial.” T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec. Contractors 22 Ass’n, 809 F.2d 626, 631 (9th Cir. 1987). In other words, the nonmoving party cannot avoid 23 summary judgment by relying solely on conclusory allegations that are unsupported by factual 24 data. See Taylor v. List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989). Instead, the opposition must go 25 beyond the assertions and allegations of the pleadings and set forth specific facts by producing

1 competent evidence that shows a genuine issue for trial. See Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 324.

2 At summary judgment, a court's function is not to weigh the evidence and determine the 3 truth but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial. See Anderson, 477 U.S. at 249.
4 The evidence of the nonmovant is "to be believed, and all justifiable inferences are to be drawn 5 in his favor." Id. at 255. But if the evidence of the nonmoving party is merely colorable or is 6 not significantly probative, summary judgment may be granted. See id. at 249-50.

7 III. DISCUSSION

8 In assessing the pending Motions, the Court will address: (1) Plaintiffs' § 1983 claim 9 against the Officer Defendants; (2) Plaintiffs' § 1983 claim against CCSD; (3) Plaintiffs' 10 battery claim against CCSD; (4) punitive damages; and (5) enhanced damages pursuant to Nev.
11 Rev. Stat. § 41.1395.

12 A. Section 1983 Claim Against the Officer Defendants

13 To successfully bring a § 1983 claim, a plaintiff must show (1) a violation of a 14 constitutional right and (2) that the alleged violation was committed by a person acting under 15 color of state law. West v. Atkins, 487 U.S. 42, 48 (1988). However, § 1983 "is not itself a 16 source of substantive rights, but merely provides a method for vindicating federal rights 17 elsewhere conferred." Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 393-94 (1989).

18 The Fourteenth Amendment protects against the government's interference with "an 19 individual's bodily integrity." P.B. v. Koch, 96 F.3d 1298, 1303 (9th Cir. 1996). "Government 20 officials are, of course, justified in using force . . . in carrying out legitimate governmental 21 functions. But, when the force is excessive, or used without justification or for malicious 22 reasons, there is a violation of substantive due process." Id. Furthermore, it is well established 23 that a public school official's act of assaulting a student without any justification for the use of 24 force gives rise to a cause of action under the Fourteenth Amendment. See id. at 1304.

25 Plaintiffs assert that the Officer Defendants should be held liable pursuant to the 1 “enhanced danger doctrine.” (Pls.’ Mot. 18:14-20:6). Under this doctrine, liability may be 2 imposed against a state officer who places a person in peril with deliberate indifference to their 3 safety. See, e.g., Penilla v. City of Huntington Park, 115 F.3d 707, 709 (9th Cir. 1997); L.W. v.

4 Grubbs, 974 F.2d 119, 121 (9th Cir. 1992). However, a state actor cannot be liable pursuant to 5 this doctrine unless they made an affirmative action which created or increased the danger 6 faced by the victim. See, e.g., Campbell v. State of Washington Dep’t of Soc. & Health Servs., 7 671 F.3d 837, 846 (9th Cir. 2011); Johnson v. City of Seattle, 474 F.3d 634, 639 (9th Cir.
8 2007).

9 In this case, Plaintiffs assert that the Officer Defendants should be held liable pursuant to 10 the enhanced danger doctrine because they failed to monitor the live feed on March 5, 2012, or 11 take immediate action to intervene when they witnessed Defendant James aggressively 12 dragging and pinning M.P. on March 6, 2012. Plaintiffs argue that if the Officer Defendants 13 had arrested Defendant James more quickly, several batteries upon M.P. would have been 14 prevented.

15 Though Plaintiffs may be correct in observing that earlier intervention could have 16 prevented some of Defendant James’ aggressive physical restraints upon M.P., this observation 17 in and of itself is insufficient to establish liability against the Officer Defendants. Indeed, prior 18 to arresting Defendant James, the Officer Defendants had no interaction with M.P. or the staff 19 of Classroom 25. As such, the Officer Defendants cannot be said to have taken any affirmative 20 action to place M.P. in harm’s way. Plaintiffs have provided no evidence showing that any of 21 the Officer Defendants’ actions created or increased the danger that M.P. faced. Instead, 22 Plaintiffs’ evidence shows only a possibility that the Officer Defendants could have more 23 quickly resolved a dangerous situation they played no part in creating. Accordingly, Plaintiffs 24 have failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact that the Officer Defendants performed a 25 requisite affirmative act which facilitated a violation of M.P.’s rights, and summary judgment

1 will thus be granted in favor of the Officer Defendants. See Whitley v. Hanna, 726 F.3d 631, 2 643 (5th Cir. 2013) (“[A]lthough we do not deny the possibility that Hanna could have 3 conducted the investigation differently, perhaps even gathering enough evidence to make an 4 arrest in less than the two weeks it took him, Hanna’s failure to immediately end the abuse does 5 not make him deliberately indifferent.”).

6 B. Section 1983 Claim Against CCSD

7 In Monell v. New York City Department of Social Services the Supreme Court held that 8 municipalities can be sued directly under § 1983 for violations of constitutional rights. See 436 9 U.S. 658, 690 (1978). However, a municipal entity may be held liable under § 1983 only upon 10 a showing that it had a “deliberate policy, custom, or practice that was the moving force behind 11 the constitutional violation.” Galen v. County of Los Angeles, 477 F.3d 652, 667 (9th Cir.
 12 2007). Additionally, a municipal entity’s failure to train its employees gives rise to a § 1983 13 claim only when that failure arises out of deliberate indifference to individuals’ constitutional 14 rights. City of Canton v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 389 (1989).

15 In this case, Plaintiffs appear to assert two distinct legal theories which would impose 16 liability upon CCSD pursuant to § 1983.¹ First, Plaintiffs assert that CCSD should be liable for 17 Defendant James’ actions because CCSD trained her to perform aggressive physical restraints 18 like the one for which she was arrested on March 6, 2012. Alternatively, Plaintiffs argue that 19 even if Defendant James was not directly trained to perform restraints in that manner, CCSD 20 was deliberately indifferent to her doing so.

21 As to the first theory of liability, Plaintiffs point out that Defendant James testified 22 during her deposition that her physical restraints upon M.P. on March 6, 2012, fully complied 23 with the CCSD’s CPI Training. (James Depo. 12:10-21, ECF No. 124-3). In fact, Defendant 24

25 ¹ Notably, CCSD does not dispute that Defendant James’ actions violated M.P.’s constitutional rights. Instead, CCSD argues only that it cannot be held liable for Defendant James’ actions pursuant to Monell.

1 James stated that those restraints were performed using the same methods that she had been 2 using to restrain students at Variety School since 2007. (Id. 12:18-22).

3 For its part, CCSD has presented evidence indicating that Defendant James' actions 4 were inconsistent with her CPI Training. For example, after viewing the surveillance footage, 5 Tyler Hall, Variety School's principal, stated that James' physical interaction with M.P. was 6 not in accordance with the training she had received. (Hall Depo. 83:9-21, Ex. DD to Defs.'
7 Reply, ECF No. 136). Similarly, during his deposition, Assistant Principal Jason Fico stated 8 that Defendant James' actions were not appropriate crisis prevention intervention techniques.
9 (Fico Depo. 73:12-22, Ex. EE to Defs.' Reply).

10 Viewing the evidentiary record as a whole, it is apparent that a dispute exists as to 11 whether Defendant James was acting in accordance with the customs, practices, and procedures 12 of CCSD during her interaction with M.P. on March 6, 2012. Sufficient evidence exists for a 13 reasonable jury to find either that Defendant James restrained M.P. in the manner she was 14 trained, or that Defendant James' actions were in defiance of CCSD's training and policies.
15 Accordingly, the Court finds that a genuine dispute of fact exists, and both Motions for 16 Summary Judgment will be denied as to this theory of liability.

17 Plaintiffs also argue that even if Defendant James' actions violated CCSD's official 18 physical restraint policies, CCSD's unofficial practices were nonetheless deliberately 19 indifferent to M.P.'s constitutional rights. Plaintiffs have submitted evidence purporting to 20 show CCSD's deliberate indifference in multiple ways. First, Plaintiffs point out that 21 Defendant James testified that teachers, staff members, and administrators at Variety School 22 witnessed her restraining students in the exact manner she restrained M.P. on March 6, 2012, 23 and had never physically intervened or verbally corrected her. (James Depo. 12:13-13:20, ECF 24 No. 124-3). Plaintiffs have also submitted evidence purporting to show that CCSD failed to 25 maintain statutorily required records documenting incidents in which disabled students were

1 physically restrained. Compare (Amaya Depo. pp. 25-26, ECF No. 124-4) (stating that 2 Defendant James restrained M.P. “several times a day”) with (Loehr Depo. 54:2-23, ECF No.
3 124-17) (indicating that only two instances of physical restraints upon M.P. were properly 4 documented); see also Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 388.5275 (requiring that reports be created and 5 maintained to document instances in which disabled students are physically restrained).
6 Finally, Plaintiffs point out that, despite the fact that the behavior of the students in Classroom 7 25 often necessitated the use of physical restraint techniques, CCSD did not require that every 8 staff member assigned to the classroom undergo CPI Training. (Hall Depo. 5:1-15, ECF No.
9 124-18).

10 CCSD refutes these lines of reasoning individually, asserting that: (1) several witnesses 11 testified that they had not previously seen Defendant James physically restrain students in the 12 manner she restrained M.P. on March 6, 2012, see, e.g., (Amaya Depo. 38:2-11); (2) the 13 alleged failure to fill out the required forms amounts only to negligence rather than deliberate 14 indifference, (Defs.’ Reply, 11:6-12:8); and (3) declining to require that every staff member 15 assigned to Classroom 25 undergo CPI training did not ignore a risk to students’ rights, because 16 all staff members were still required to report instances of child abuse and were instructed to 17 generally avoid physical contact with students, (Wooden Depo. 11:14-17, Ex. Z to Defs.’ 18 Mot.). However, it is not Plaintiffs’ burden to demonstrate that a single witness’ testimony, 19 absent document, or training practice proves deliberate indifference. Nor would a jury’s 20 decision upon the issue need to rest upon only a single piece of evidence. Plaintiffs have 21 submitted several pieces of evidence, which considered together in the most favorable light, 22 demonstrate that CCSD had a policy of deliberate indifference which facilitated the 23 unwarranted use of force upon students in Classroom 25, including M.P. As a result, the Court 24 finds that Plaintiffs have satisfied their burden by raising a genuine issue of material fact, and 25 Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment will be denied. Likewise, as Plaintiffs’ evidence is 1 disputed by that of Defendants, Plaintiffs' Motion will be denied as to the issue of whether 2 CCSD had an unofficial policy, custom, or practice which was deliberately indifferent to the 3 deprivation of M.P.'s constitutional rights.

4 C. Battery Claim Against CCSD

5 CCSD does not dispute that Defendant James committed battery upon M.P. on the dates 6 in question, but argues instead that it cannot be held liable for Defendant James' conduct 7 pursuant to Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.745(1). This section "promulgates three distinct circumstances 8 in which an employer is liable for an employee's intentional tort: (1) the employee's act was 9 not a 'truly independent venture,' (2) the employee acted 'in the course of the very task 10 assigned,' or (3) the employee's act was 'reasonably foreseeable under the facts and 11 circumstances of the case considering the nature and scope of his or her employment.' " 12 Anderson v. Mandalay Corp., 358 P.3d 242, 247 (Nev. 2015) (quoting Nev. Rev. Stat. § 13 41.745(1)).

14 In the instant case, Plaintiffs have sufficiently shown that Defendant James acted "in the 15 course of the very task assigned" by CCSD when she violently restrained M.P. Defendant 16 James was assigned to Classroom 25 as a classroom aide, and was expected to perform 17 appropriate physical restraints when necessary to prevent students from injuring themselves or 18 others. (Schell Depo. 10:14-21. ECF No. 124-13); (Nonviolent Crisis Intervention Participant 19 Workbook pp. CCSD-PHIPPS000732, Ex. G-1 to Defs.' Resp.).

20 In Prell Hotel Corp. v. Antonacci, the Nevada Supreme Court held that a hotel and 21 casino was liable when one of its employees, a card dealer, assaulted a guest who was playing a 22 game of "21." 469 P.2d 399, 400 (Nev. 1970). Specifically, the court held that because the 23 employee hit the guest in the midst of the game and "did not leave his position behind the 21 24 table to accomplish the assault and battery," the tort occurred within the scope of the 25 employee's assigned tasks. Id. Similarly, in this case, Defendant James performed her

1 aggressive restraints upon M.P. while overseeing the students in Classroom 25. In the midst of 2 her activities as a classroom aide, Defendant James repeatedly “dragg[ed]” M.P. to the ground 3 and “pin[ned]” him to the floor with her knees and elbows, in the very classroom in which she 4 was assigned. (Decl. of Arrest p. 1, ECF 124-2). Thus, just as the dealer in Prell Hotel was 5 found to be acting within the scope of his assigned tasks during his assault upon the casino’s 6 guest, the Court finds that Defendant James was acting within the course of the tasks assigned 7 to her when she forcefully restrained M.P. in the classroom. Accordingly, the Court finds that 8 Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.745 does not protect CCSD from liability arising from Plaintiffs’ battery 9 claim against Defendant James.² Therefore, Plaintiffs’ Motion for Summary Judgment will be 10 granted as to the issue of vicarious liability.

11 D. Punitive Damages

12 Plaintiffs seek an award of punitive damages against CCSD based upon their § 1983 13 claim. However, it is well established that punitive damages may not be awarded for § 1983 14 claims against municipal entities, because municipal entities are unable to form the requisite 15 intent, and because such damages would serve to punish taxpayers. City of Newport v. Fact 16 Concerts, Inc., 453 U.S. 247, 268-71 (1981); Herrera v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t, 298 F.
 17 Supp. 2d 1043, 1055 (D. Nev. 2004). Accordingly, CCSD’s Motion for Summary Judgment
 18 will be granted as to Plaintiffs’ request for punitive damages.³

19
 20 ² Though it is apparent from the record that Defendant James’ conduct occurred within the course of her 21 assigned tasks, Plaintiffs have not yet shown that the elements of their underlying battery claim are satisfied. In 22 regard to the underlying battery claim, Plaintiffs merely state, “Lachelle committed seven separate and distinct 23 batteries on [M.P.]. They occur on the videotapes at the following times There is no question about this.
 24 Lachelle is liable. The issue is respondeat superior.” (Pls.’ Mot 20:8-13). While Plaintiffs may be confident that 25 the video evidence definitively shows that Defendant James committed batteries upon M.P., they failed to submit this evidence in support of their Motion. Thus, Plaintiffs’ battery claim remains pending before the Court.

26 ³ Though the subject is not discussed explicitly in Defendants’ Motion, the Court also notes that, as a matter of 27 law, Plaintiffs may not recover punitive damages against CCSD based on their battery claim. See Nev. Rev. Stat.
 28 § 41.035 (providing that an award for damages based on a tort claim against a subdivision of the state “may not 29 include any amount as exemplary or punitive damages”); Peterson v. Miranda, 991 F. Supp. 2d 1109, 1120 (D.
 Nev. 2014).

1 E. Enhanced Damages Pursuant to Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.1395

2 In their Complaint, Plaintiffs request that any damages they are awarded be enhanced 3 pursuant to Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.1395, which provides that an award for actual damages be 4 doubled in some instances when the victim of a personal injury is an “older or vulnerable 5 person.” However, Plaintiffs concede that this provision is inapplicable to CCSD, because a 6 state actor is not a “person” as the term is used in the statute. (Pls.’ Resp. 24:16-20); cf.
7 Simonian v. Univ. & Cnty. Coll. Sys. of Nevada, 128 P.3d 1057, 1062 (Nev. 2006) (holding 8 that state entities are not “persons,” and are therefore not subject to liability under Nevada’s 9 False Claims Act). Accordingly, Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment will be granted 10 as to Plaintiffs’ request for enhanced damages pursuant to Nev. Rev. Stat. § 41.1395.
